

Declaration of Himeji City as a City Promoting Countermeasures against AMR

The problem of antimicrobial resistance (AMR) is predicted to cost many lives in the future if no countermeasures are taken. In order to avert this crisis, efforts to combat AMR are being made globally.

AMR has become an international problem as a common threat to humanity. Himeji City shares this sense of crisis, and believes that each of us should realize the threat of AMR and the importance of countermeasures against it. Himeji City believes that we should deepen our knowledge and understanding of AMR.

Himeji City will promote antimicrobial stewardship in the fields of healthcare, livestock production, and aquaculture through a One Health approach, which considers the health of all people, animals, and the global environment as integral parts of public health.

Himeji City aims to reduce the number of deaths caused by AMR, and hereby declares that we will become a "City Promoting Countermeasures against AMR".
